7:06 Life and Influences: Sir Tipene O'Regan

Straddling both the Pakeha and Māori worlds it's fair to say his influence on Māoridom has been profound. Sir Tipene O'Regan has been described as the architect of the Maori economic model, who, in the words of The Press, 'negotiated his guts out' to secure an historic 170 million dollar settlement for Ngāi Tahu. He talks about significant influences in his life.

8:06 Windows on the World

International public radio features and documentaries

9:06 The Tuesday Feature

9:30 Auckland Writers Festival: Helen MacDonald with Noelle McCarthy

The English historian, poet, naturalist and illustrator Helen Macdonald once bred hawks for Arab sheikhs. She is also the winner of the Costa Award and the Samuel Johnson Prize for Non-Fiction for 'H is for Hawk', a chronicle of her attempt to tame Mabel the goshawk as a means of assuaging grief after the death of her father. "Grief," she writes, "is just love with nowhere to go." She expands on that in conversation with Noelle McCarthy.

10:00 Late Edition

A round-up of the day's news and interview highlights from RNZ National

10:30 The Elements - Calcium

Calcium is the great structural element. It is the basis of much of the great architecture in nature as well as many of the incredible structures made by man. Presenter Justin Rowlatt hears from chemistry supremo Andrea Sella at the Royal Institution in London, where calcium was first isolated two centuries ago. He visits the obscure birthplace of the biggest modern-day use of calcium - cement - and sees that use in action at London's giant Crossrail construction project. And, if that weren't enough, we also hear from Professor Serena Best of Cambridge University about how she is trying to replicate the way the human body uses calcium to construct bone. (BBC)

11:06 The Shed

Award winning former British broadcaster Mark Coles presents his pick of the best new music releases and demos from around the planet. A glorious mix of brand new sounds from all over the world, real conversations with music makers and tales of everyday life as seen from an English garden shed. (4 of 13, MCM)
